Creating reusable constraint libraries

You can add or create constraints in a Package, such as a library, and export it as a new project, so that you can reuse the library in other projects.

The following sections present instructions on how to export a package as a new project and how to work with shared packages:

- Exporting packages to new projects
- Sharing project data