

Runtime Value Monitoring

The topic describes about creating runtime objects and value in the Variables pane from Classifiers and Instance Specifications including automatic initialization, exporting runtime objects to InstanceSpecifications, and the Times series chart. This section also discusses about carrying values using connectors, checking values against feature types, and verification status of runtime values to be recorded.

Related pages

- Context, runtime object, and runtime value
- Variables pane
- The Time series chart
- Creating values and objects in the variables pane
- Creating runtime objects from Classifiers
- Creating runtime objects from Instance Specifications
- Automatic initialization of context and runtime objects
- Carrying values using connectors
- Checking values against feature types
- Exporting runtime objects to InstanceSpecifications
- Recording Verification status of runtime values