

Using workflows

Using review workflows has a few benefits

- Users involved in the review are immediately notified over email.
- The author can check out the status of reviews at a glance.

To use review workflows, all you need to do is create a review task, assign reviewers, and published projects to it.

 An email notification sent to the user, after he/she is added to a workflow, by default contains incorrect link to the shared project. For more information about solving this issue, see Fixing broken email template.

Related pages

- Sharing published project with reviewers
- Reviewing project and providing feedback