Signal Event

A signal may be sent as the action of a state in a state machine or as a message in an interaction.

A signal is a named object sent asynchronously by one object and received by another.

In the Signal Specification window, you can modify the current element and add various specifications to it.