

Participant Property

Participant properties can be the ends of connectors owned by an Association Block. The keyword «participant» before a property name indicates the property is stereotyped by ParticipantProperty. The types of participant properties can be elided if desired. They are always the same as the corresponding association end type.

Related pages

- Creating Association Block
- Using Association Block as Connector type