Package Merge

A package merge is a directed relationship between two packages indicating that the contents of the two packages are to be combined. It is very similar to a Generalization, in that the source element conceptually adds the characteristics of the target element to its own characteristics, resulting in an element that combines the characteristics of both.

Specify the Package Merge in the Package Merge Specification window.

You can format the Package Merge symbol properties in the Symbol Properties dialog.